

Print these out and set them next to the computer that is running the game. That way, you can control the game without the audience getting distracted by watching your mouse move around.

